Küberit Trade Fair Preview: A Little More of Everything

More Comfort, More Flexibility, More Design, More Sustainability

03 January 2019; Küberit, Lüdenscheid. – At Domotex in January, Küberit will once again show that aluminium profiles, profile systems and stair edge profiles can not only become technically easier, more sustainable and more flexible – they can also visually enrich interior design.

Küberit Shows Its Colours

The profile specialist has not only added two new, contemporary colours and other profiles with a smooth surface to its range – it has also equipped angles, stair profiles and the well-known Motion Star movement joint profile with new technical features. “As the demands and needs of our customers change, we continue to develop our profiles and always try to think one step ahead. With our new products, we offer solutions for the rapidly changing flooring market and new living styles. The technical innovations support installation teams during assembly and the new design options fulfil the visual wishes of the building owners,” says Lars Maier, Sales Manager for Germany, outlining the innovations that Küberit will be presenting at Domotex. In addition, Küberit will show that aluminium profiles are a surprisingly sustainable, resource-saving choice.

More Design

In addition to delivering a larger choice of colours, Küberit will, from January, also be providing covering for edges with very delicate angles. In addition, new stair nosing profiles including shaped parts and round corners for the optimum laying of design and laminate flooring on stair treads will expand the range.

Easier Processing

Next year, alongside a new Motion Star movement joint profile for pavements up to 2.2mm offering easier processing, there will also be a profile series with a new installation process. With the most important profile heights of the silicone and the double K profiles, Küberit has added a length of 3.0m while also bringing out a new expansion joint profile with silicone for coverings up to 2.5mm – all with the aim of saving installation teams time and making their work easier.
